1. Candidate motivation

In recent years, the world has faced myriad worrying crises, whether related to health, climate change, war, or other reasons. Africa, already vulnerable, has been particularly badly affected, having had to face natural disasters, such as droughts, flooding, locust infestations and cyclones, as well as manmade crises, such as conflicts (involving state and non-state armed groups or intercommunity fighting).

The Red Cross of Cabo Verde believes it can make a real contribution to resolving the crises currently affecting the world, and Africa in particular. As part of the Movement, it is already committed to tackling armed conflict and violence, catastrophes and crises related to climate change, epidemics, food insecurity and mass displacement in some of the most vulnerable contexts around the world. Its commitment remains steadfast. The Red Cross of Cabo Verde is dedicated to the noble spirit and principles of the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement and to the aims and principles set out in the Charter of the United Nations. It supports the efforts of both organizations in the areas of peace, international security and development, and is confident that its knowledge and skills will be of benefit to the Red Cross Movement.
